

Hazard Communication Module 1 Quiz

1. If you do not know the proper procedure for dealing with a given chemical exposure, you should:

- Ask your supervisor.
- Convince your coworker to do it so you do not have to expose yourself.
- Do the job anyway, because that is what you are paid to do.
- Assume there is no hazard.

2. The manufacturer is responsible for identifying hazardous chemicals and preparing MSDSs.

- True
- False

3. You are responsible for protecting yourself and asking questions.

- True
- False

4. One of the five main sections of the hazard communication standard is the written program.

- True
- False

5. Your employer is responsible for training employees.

- True
- False

6. Which of the following is a way the hazard communication standard uses to communicate hazards?

- Training
- MSDS (Material Safety Data Sheet)
- Container labeling
- All of the above

7. Which one of the following is not a section in the hazard communication standard?

- Identification of hazardous chemicals
- Information and training
- Labels
- MSDSs
- Trucks, trains and automobiles

8. Which of the following is not a required element of container labels?

- Chemical identity
- Hazard warning
- Manufacturer name and address
- Odor threshold

9. What is the purpose of the hazard communication standard?

- To promote open communication between staff and their management
- To describe how waste is to be neutralized prior to disposal
- To ensure hazards of all chemicals produced or imported are evaluated, and that information concerning their hazards is transmitted to employers and employees
- To encourage personnel to talk more in the workplace

10. Your employer is responsible for creating MSDSs for hazardous chemicals.

- True
- False